

Dreams as Boundless as the Sky Above Them

St. Labre Indian School

The Plains appear Boundless, but for many Native American children, reality is not. Children living on reservations face significant challenges—poverty, limited resources, and fewer opportunities to imagine a future beyond their circumstances. Yet at St. Labre Indian School, these children are given a path forward, one where their potential is Boundless and their dreams can stretch as wide as the Big Sky.

In Boundless, the latest PSA from St. Labre Indian School, you will see how St. Labre is more than a school—it is a place of support, stability, and discovery. At St. Labre children learn, connect with their culture, and grow with confidence. With sweeping landscapes and classrooms alive with learning, viewers will see how St. Labre teachers and staff offer unwavering guidance, giving students the tools they need to build bright futures.

Air Boundless today and help create opportunities for the Native American children of the Northern Cheyenne and Crow communities and help them rise, thrive, and dream beyond the challenges they face.
