

St. Labre Indian School

A child stepping off a school bus may seem like an ordinary moment. But for some Native American children growing up in poverty, that step represents safety, stability and a future full of possibilities.

In A Journey Revealed, a new PSA from St. Labre Indian School, you will learn how the organization is helping children overcome hardship through education, encouragement, and community. Follow students through moments that shape their daily life. From arriving at school with excitement to learning, creating, and connecting with teachers and friends, see how classrooms, hearty meals and joyful interactions shape a supportive learning environment that can transform challenges into confidence, opportunity, and hope.

By airing A Journey Revealed your station can help spotlight the impact of education in Southeastern Montana Native American communities and introduce audiences to an organization making a lasting difference. Download and air A Journey Revealed today.
